

PCA and Canon Team Up to Support the Arbor Day Foundation

August 12, 2016

Similar to how PCA seeks to build strong collaborative relationships with its customers, the company also strives to build strong corporate partnerships with its suppliers. One such example is PCA's long-term relationship with Canon Solutions America, who supplies multi-functional printers to PCA's network of facilities. Through this ongoing relationship with Canon Solutions America, PCA is proud to be able to help communities across the U.S. recover from natural disasters.

Canon Solutions America, along with its parent company, Canon USA, Inc., participates with the Arbor Day Foundation to plant trees in the wake of natural disasters. In tandem with the foundation's Community Tree Recovery program, Canon donates funds to plant a tree for every installation of their imageRUNNER ADVANCE Series printers.

PCA was pleased to be able to recently contribute to the Arbor Day Foundation's efforts with the installation of over 250 Canon printers nationwide. Thanks to Canon and the Community Tree Recovery program, that equates to over 250 trees planted in American communities in PCA's name.

Canon has partnered with the Arbor Day Foundation since 2009 and has helped contribute to the distribution and planting of over 360,000 trees. These trees do more than just replace lost vegetation following a natural disaster such as floods, tornados, wildfires and hurricanes. They help bring healing and hope to communities and people who live in them.
